

DOOR TO DOOR HELPS PETS IN NEED

Door to Door Storage, headquartered in Kent, is helping the Seattle Humane Society with its annual Holiday Pet Food Drive by donating four 3,000 pound-capacity containers to store much-needed food for the pets of needy seniors and people disabled by AIDS.

"The Seattle Humane Society's Holiday Pet Food Drive is an important effort to ensure that lower income individuals are able to provide their pets with the care that they need this winter," said Annette Jacobs, president and CEO, Door To Door Storage. "Door To Door Storage is proud to be a part of this effort and it embodies our core mission to participate in a meaningful way to support our community."

The economy is pushing more seniors into a lower income bracket. Seniors with pets may find themselves forced to choose between self care and pet care. More low-income seniors are turning to the Seattle Humane Society's Pet Food Bank, now in its 25th year of operation. The food bank provides more than 1,220 pets with monthly pet food—and the number is growing.

Seattle Humane is hoping for a record-breaking amount of donations to help feed the growing number of pets depending on the program. But lack of storage space is an issue for the Seattle Humane Society. Door To Door Storage, Inc. came to the rescue and offered to supply temporary storage units to house overflow food for the food bank.

The Holiday Pet Food Drive ends on December 31. Donations can be dropped off at the shelter or in barrels at participating Safeway stores across King County. The Pet Food Bank accepts donations year-round at the shelter, located in Bellevue, at the junction of I-405 and I-90.
