FIDO FASHIONS: MUTTS STRUT THEIR STUFF

Dogs ready for on-the-spot adoptions will walk the runway at Hotel Monaco

This Friday, September 5, from 11 am – 1 pm, adoptable dogs from the Seattle Humane Society will walk the runway at Hotel Monaco's 6th annual "Fido Fashions Show." With the goal of raising awareness for pet adoption, Seattle Humane Society dogs will model fashionable doggy duds from Railey's Leash & Treat. Dogs featured in the fashion show will be available for adoption immediately after the event.

"What a fun way to celebrate animal companionship," said Brenda Barnette, Chief Executive Officer for the Seattle Humane Society, "Spend your lunch break seeing the latest canine fashion trends, and, if you fall in love you can adopt on the spot and take your new best friend home!"

The fashion show will begin at 11 am at Hotel Monaco, with adoptions going until 1 pm. Adoption fees start at $85 and include six weeks of training. All adoptable dogs have been spayed/neutered, health-checked, behavior-tested and vaccinated.

Founded in 1897, the Seattle Humane Society is King County's largest private animal shelter and the community's leading resource for animal lovers and pet guardians. Dedicated to bringing people and pets together, the Seattle Humane Society serves over 14,000 animals and 40,000 people per year through a broad range of services, including adoptions, low-fee spay/neuter surgery, kid summer camps, dog training and a Visiting Pets Program, which brings the love of animals to seniors who are not able to have pets of their own.
